

IQC Landscape Unifies US Education Gaudino Jan 22 2016 MediumPhone

Today - Monday Feb. 29 is the deadline to post comments to shape the future of basic learning of our country - with the Pacific inclusion - for the millions of youth at risk.

Do you need to see the language for writing to post your public comment?

The question, What is the meaning of history? will include the landscape "Dirt and Water" natural history for starting the student common core inquiry. This North American locations engage youth understanding how the location the interacts with the nation's political "Freedom and Liberty" tradition. This maturity in teaching share our US History from the Atlantic to the Pacific coasts.

Has this happened before? The "pioneer spirit" continues to strengthen our communities.

The conversation is now moving to what is the basic knowledge for the solution... that is crucial to transform the reality of youth at risk for the nation's future preparedness. Across California 60% are first generation in community colleges. The statewide voter rate is 17%. This History Social Science framework must perform to energize youth thirs for knowledge so their apathy is changed by the USA PROUD Learning Challenge by having the personal roots to care and connec to their community and our nation's future.

Kind regards

Riccardo Gaudino, Director of Research and Design

Golden State History